Session 4: Promoting and facilitating responsible and ethical community based evaluations

Sharon Groenmeyer PhD
Assessor/researcher/evaluator
The context

The SA Constitution 1996 provides a human rights perspective on
- the right to dignity and equality
- the right to protection
- right to truth and the right to knowledge and
- the right to social justice and
- the right to special protection in situations of exploitation
Human rights violation occurs when a community organisation is unable to

- Access social justice
- Not able to enjoy Constitutional justice
- Do not enjoy participatory democracy
How is the human rights violation addressed

• If programme owners and the recipients of grant agree on the method of intervention
• Believe that the intervention will address the human rights violation
• Alleviate community tension towards peace-building.
How do you know if the intervention addresses the human rights violation

• The programme intervention facilitates the periodic alleviation with a short-term grant
• If the tools or skills being implemented ensure the elimination of a particular violation in the long-term
• Address this violation as an element towards social justice in the community
IF YOU WANT PEACE, WORK FOR JUSTICE.
